The Future of Gold and Government Bonds and Their Connection with Real Estate.

CAN WE RESUME IN 1879?

WALL STREET, MONDAY, July 5, 1875. One of the peculiar conditions of the market, caused by the panic of 1873 is the great difference in the price of real estate and government bonds. Prior to our late civil war real estate was conndeatly held, and high prices were predicted on account of the rapid growth of our population and the multiplication of our industries and wealth.

But when the first shot at Sumter sroused the nation to the impending conflict and fortunes were swept away, and a want of confidence generally prevailed, real estate declined rapidly in value. while gold advanced in premium. The continued issue of greenbacks, however, soon changed the situation. With an advancing gold premium capitalists, anxious for a safe investment, bought largely of real estate. The architectural changes in this city were only a part of the situation. A similar condition of affairs existed throughout the whole country. Yet how different are the affairs of to-day! Over thirteen years have elapsed since

THE PIRST SHOT ON SUMTER: our population, both by natural growth and im migration, has largely increased, but capital is timid and roal estate regarded as an unsafe investment. The question is pertinent, Why should a government bond bearing 6 per cent interest sell at 122% (paying, therefore, as an investment but little over 4 per cent). When it is only really a mortgage on our real estate, if real estate itself is to continue shrinking in value? After the pas-sage of the "Busted bill" and the prediction that the Elevated Rallway will shortly run trains from Bowling Green to Kingsbridge in thirty minutes, it is difficult to understand the apathy or the timidity that has seized the public mind. In the language of Patrick Henry, "There is no way of judging of the future but by the past." Judging by that past, and looking at the large list of our wealthy citizens, we see that the great majority have made their fortunes by prudent investments in real estate. Yet it not appears as if the many had adopted the precent of Jay Cooke, that "A national debt is a national blessing," and are simply centented to hold government bends, without regard to the interest on the investment or the safety of their ultimate payment. Fortunately there is a considerable class who are not imbued with Mr. Cooke's ideas, and still believe that real estate or bricks and mortar are better than bonds, and that

GOLD IS BETTER THAN OBRENBACES. They argue, and not without reason, that if the Onto election this fall should be carried on the "soft money" platform the West and the South will wheel into line on the same platform and conduciders be eventually ferced to take green backs for their government securities, and that meanwhile, owing to the continued export of gold in excess of its preduction, the premium on the same will advance to the high figures which is attained before it was forced down by the per-sistent sales of the Treasury Department. It is estimated that the stock of gold on hand is over $200,000,000 less than it was in 1861. When the ferce of this depiction is fully understood and the people of the country realize that the day may metal to deliver in payment of our debts important changes may be looked for, not least smong which will be the attitude of our capitalists and bondholders, who will discover their mistake in not pinning more faith to the future of real estate and being content with "the bird in hand, instead of looking for two in the bush." BILLIARDS.

Al -STANDARD AMERICAN BEVEL BILLIARD tons, are for tale only by the manufacturer and patenter. H. W. OOLLERDER, successor to Pholan & Collender, 738 Stread way, New York.

THE AMOUNT OF GOLD now in the Treasury a contemporary says:-"As the Treasury stands pledged to the payment of its obligations in gold three and a half years hence, the question-how much gold have we with which to face the operation? -is felt to become one of urgent importance, and nothing can be more demoralizing than to know that such statements as are given contain aggreration. We seriously question whether the Treasury owns $37,500,000 of gold coin and builion, and yet from the debt statement of the ist inst, the public would conclude that it owned $58,000,000 and held $80,000,000. This virtual deception should not be continued, and, if for no other reason, because we cannot afford to have an alarming surprise sprung upon the people at a everything that is not either coin or bullios, and it should periodically inform the public what proportion consists of gold and what of sliver. A Secretary of the Treasury cannot afford to feel indifferent about this matter, and we rely upon the good judgment of Mr. Bristow for its receiving proper attention."

CHARGE AGAINST TILTON'S COUNSEL.

LOADER-PRICE AFFAIR AGAIN.

The imbrogito brought about by the amdayits of Loader and Price and the charges of conspiracy made by one party to the great scandal suit against the other seems to be getting worse from day to day and drawing a greater number of people within its messes than was at first anticipated. Some of the parties connected with it seem determined to implicate the counsel for the plaintiff and boast of having damning proofs in their possession of their participation in the affair. The character of the parties on whose evidence these grave charges are said to rest is at least questionable, and as there appears to be no more repectable testimony in support of them it is hard to see how they can e proved. The latest phase of the affair is a state ment made by one E. W. Connor. a Orland of Price. directly implicating the plaintiff's counsel, Mr. Mouiton and plaintiff himself in the alleged censpiracy.

last Thursday, while Loader and Price were being examined, on a charge of bigamy, and is now in jail, Mr. Overfield, a lawyer who is conducting a suit for the recovery of some property for Connor. asserts that the arrest was incited by Mr. Tilton's friends in order to destroy his credibility as a witness against those who are to be charged with conspiracy and subornation of perjury. This is a grave charge, but it is made boidly and unhesitatingly, though it seems to rest on the evidence of a man of somewhat doubtful character. Connor is charged with robberies in Philadelphia and in Milford, Conn.; but Mr. Overfield disposes of them by saying that the Milford affair was simply a aumber of schoolboys (Coanor being one of them) taking a shawi while on a "lark." A similar excuse is found for the Philadelphia escapade, Connor being simply returning with some comrades from Washington during the war, and getting into a row with a Jew about something one of the party did, of which he, of course, knew nething. Excuses of this kind are easily found, but Mr. Overfield does not deny that his client, whom he claims to be heir to considerable property, has led a wild life and has no regular means of living.

A HERALD reporter called yesterday on Mr. Overfield, at his residence in Macon street, Brooklyn, for the purpose of ascertaining the exact truth of this matter, and whether it was true that Connor had given him a fell statement of the alleged facts. Mr. Overfield said he had the alleged facts. Mr. Overfield said he had got all the facts from Connor but that he had not the written statement completed yet. However, he said, he had no objection to give to the fightal the substance of the statement.

"Do you really believe that Mr. Tilton's friends had anything to do with getting this man Connor arrested?" said the reporter.

"Certainly," said Mr. Overfield, "I have no doubt of it. There is no foundation for the charge of bigamy, and he was arrested in Court before he could give his evidence."

"Who brought the charge of bigamy; was it any of Mr. Tilton's friends?"

"His wife, or the woman ne was living with and who has had a child ty him. It is not certain he was married to her, but he was married before and inherited considerable property from the first wife. But this woman must have been instigated to bring the charge of bigamy. It is strange that Mr. Tilton's friends should take such an light had for the was married before and inherited considerable property from the first wife. But this woman must have been instigated to bring the charge of bigamy. It is strange that Mr. Tilton's friends should take such an light had been a seeing this man convicted of bigamy."

"Why should they wise to get him out of the in seeing this man convicted of bigamy."
"Why should they wish to get aim out of the way ?!"
"Because he can give very damaging evidence against them in relation to this Loader and Price affair."

Mr. Overfield then proceeded to give the following

Mr. Overfield then proceeded to give the following

SUMMARY OF CONNOR'S STATEMENT.

Connor has been acquainted with Price for the last five years, Price's fasher living in the same house with Connor's brother-in-law. Connor states that he was present when Price received the subpena to go to the office of Morris & Pearsall, and seeing it was in connection with the Bescher case, and wondering way a man should be subpenaed to a lawyer's office, he asked him if he knew anything about the case. Price said he did not, and Connor then advised him not so go and to be very careful to have nothing to do with it. Price then went, according to Connor, to a lawyer named Thoraton, against whom Connor has a suit, to knew what it means, and Mr. Taorakon advised him not to go. They then want to Mr. Shearman, and the latter advised Price to go and tell the truth. Finally, Connor went with Price to the office of Morris & Pearsail, and as soon as they entered Mr. Morris said "Mr. Price, you are just the man we want," and brought him into the inner office, Connor accompanying him. In the inner office, Connor states, were Mr. Tilton, Mr. Moulton, Messrs. Morris and Fearsail, General Pryor and Mr. Beach, the latter busily engaged at a desk in a corner of the room, some distance away from the group. He states that he heard distinctly all that passed, was looking at Mr. Tilton showing Price the diagram of his house and pointing out the positions of the rooms, &c. After talking the matter over Price, Loader and Connor then went out to lunch was looking at Mr. Tilton showing Price the diagram of his house and pointing out the positions of the rooms, &c. After taking the matter over Price, Loader and Connor then went out to lunch together, Mr. Morris giving Price some money, about $70, as he went out. They talked the matter over at lunch, came back and the affidavits were then get ready. The clerk commenced to write them first, and then Connor assers that Mr. Moniton took up the pen, saying he did not write fast enough, and wrote some of the affidavits. He siso alleges that General Pryor and Mr. Morris wrote some of them, the swearing being done before Mr. Pearsall. When all was over Connor says that Mr. Morris told Price to stand by what he had done and advised him to go to the country for a while and have a good time till he was wanted, and that he said to Connor himself, "You stand by us in this thing and I will do what I promised." This allusion, Connor says, was to a promise to take up his (Connor's) suit for his property and help him through. He represents General Pryor as saying to Mouliton, "These are just our man; thay will give the evidence we want."

However incredible this statement may appear, Mr. Overfield seems to pin his faith to it and says he will place the evidence of his passed that this will be the most startling week we have had yet ance the scandal was first speken of. The plots seem to be talkedung all around, and every one who thinks he can "make a stake," or who wishes to "got his name up," seems to be determined to make the most out of the debris of the great trial.
